Today this area forms part of south western Iran. After a short period of independence under Kamnaskires I, Elymais was conquered by the Parthians, after the battle of Apamea in 188 BC. In the political upheaval that followed the death of Mithradates II, Kamnaskires II was able to restore Elymean independence, and founded a dynasty that would last until c.AD 100. Elymais finally lost its independence to Ardashir I in AD 227.

The above coin bears the same date.

- 1073 Abbasid Partisan, Baldu?, Dinar, Ardabil 324h, obv legend ahmad bin / amir al-mu'minin, rev legend al-radi billah / baldu mawla / amir al-mu'minin, 3.71g (unrecorded issue for this mint and year). Very fine and extremely rare. £2500-3000
The obverse field of this coin contains the name of an otherwise unknown Abbasid heir, ahmad / bin amir al-mu'minin. The name of the recognised heir, Abu'l-Fadl, appears on the regular Abbasid coinage between 327 and 329h. al-Radi's pre-caliphal name was Abu'l-'Abbas Ahmad. Is it possible that the otherwise unknown client of the caliph (mawla) Baldu (which, because it is in unpointed script, could be read as nalku or yaldu), gave confusing instructions to the mint, which placed this otherwise impossible legend on the obverse? Certainly Ardabil was in a state of great confusion at this time; Muflih al-Yusufi died in 323h, an otherwise unknown 'Abdullah b. Mahfuz struck a dirham in Ardabil in 324h, and Daysam b. Ibrahim took over in 325 or 326h. The mint officials must have had some difficulty deciding whose name should appear at any one time.

This coin was clearly struck during a period of disorder in Jurjan. The Samanids' overlordship had been repudiated, and with it allegiance to the Abbasid caliph al-Radi. In place of his name appears the pious phrase 'Power belongs to God' with the orphaned title amir al-mu'minin.

Both the wazir 'Ubaydallah and Rustam b. Jastan are, apart from this coin, unknown. The Abbasid caliph al-Muti', who was under the tutelage of the Buwayhids, did not have a wazir to act for him and Rustam b. Jastan, who may have been a Sallarid, does not appear in their family tree. He may however have been a Jastanid, a younger brother of Manadhir b. Jastan who briefly held Maragha in 359h.

This appears to be the only known Ghaznawid gold coin from the mint of Anbar or Anbir, the capital of Juzjan district in Khurasan province. It is likely that Mas'ud I was either governor of the district or passing through the town when the coin was struck.
