ORDER THE ST. GEORGE

- Founded by Catherine the Great exclusively for Meritorious Military Services or Bravery in Combat. Named after Russian martyr St. George, allegedly a Cappadocian soldier of 3 cent. AD, who was perhaps one of the first pro-Christian fighters. For ripping off Diocletian's anti-Christian edict, George was beheaded on April 23, 303 in Nicomedia, thus becoming a martyr of the Christian Church.
- The Order had 4 classes, where the first two classes could only be bestowed on the personal decree of the Emperor, and the last two classes might have been awarded upon close examination of the deed and approval by Georgevsky Council.
- The First Class Order was only awarded 25 times(!). where the first ever recipient of the insignia was Catherine II herself (at the institution day). Non-Christian version of the Order had St. George in a center medallion replaced with the Imperial Eagle.
- The annual feast day of the Order was celebrated on November 26th of each year.

ORDER OF ST. ANNE

- Originally founded in Kiel by Duke Karl Friedrich of Schleswig-Holstein-Gottorp in commemoration of his wife Anna Petrovna, daughter of Peter the Great. However, about 150 years later, the Order was re-established by Paul I of Russia in 1797, and considered to be named after St. Anne, Mother of famous Virgin Mary.
- The insignia of the Order is known to be given to the Russian citizens since 1742, when son of Karl Friedrich, Karl Peter Ulrich, who later became a short-lived Czar of Russia Peter III, moved to Russia.
- The Order originally had 1 Class, then re-founded by Paul I, 3 Classes, and finally, in 1815, the Fourth Class was added (by Alexander I). The Fourth Class insignia was worn mounted on a sword.
- Until 1845, all Classed of the Order assumed hereditary nobility rights, but later only the First Class retained the honor.
- Awarded mostly for long and distinguished services in Civil Service, and valor and outstanding achievements in the Military division. Military type insignia came with swords, also, in some exceptional cases, the insignia of 1st and 2nd Classes might come with diamonds.
- Between 1828 and 1874, recipients of the Order received the insignia with the Imperial Crown, surmounted by diamonds.
- Non-Christian version of the Order had cross and the figure of the St. Anne in the center medallion replaced for the Imperial Eagle.
- The annual feast day of the Order was celebrated on February 14th of each year.

ORDER OF ST. STANISLAUS

- Founded by Stanislaus Augustus Poniatowski of Poland in honors of Polish (and his own) Patron Saint - Stanislas. Born in Krakow in 1030, Stanislas was a Roman Catholic Prelate, and a Bishop of Krakow. In 1079, he denounced his King (who then was Boleslav) for misdeeds and excommunicated him. After being murdered for this feat of valor, Stanislas was later canonized (1253), and since then was considered a Patron Saint of Poland.
- The Order had 3 classes at first, but in 1815 a Fourth Class was added. This change was reversed back in 1839, and the Fourth Class was abolished.
- After 1831, the Order was joined together with other Russian Orders, undergoing just a slight change in design: center monogram became 'SS' (standing for Sanctus Stanislaus), converted from 'SAR' (standing for Stanislaus Augustus Rex).
- Insignia of the Order was awarded for distinguished civil and military services, as well as for excellence in preserving Christian virtues. Military type insignia came with swords, and, in some exceptional cases, might also have the swords surmounted.
- Only First Class of the Order carried hereditary nobility, as of 1845 Statutes. Before the 1845, all Classes had equal hereditary rights.
- Non-Christian version of the Order had 'SS' in a center replaced with the Imperial Eagle.
- The annual feast day of the Order was celebrated on April 25th of each year.

Russo-Turkish War of 1768-1774

After 40 years of peace, a new Russo-Turkish war sprung from a border conflict and ended with large Russian territorial expansion. As a result of the war, Russia gained the territory of Crimea and domination over the mouth of the Danube.

Russo-Turkish War of 1787-1790

As with the previous conflict, this war started as an attempt by Turkey to take back territories lost previously. It proved disastrous for the Sublime Porte. The incompetence of the Turkish armies was exacerbated by the fact that Turkey was also warring with Austria at the same time. The Austrians took Belgrade, while Russia affirmed its annexation of Crimea and also took Bessarabia (present day Moldova). Kinburn (1787), the taking of Ochakov, and the surprise attack on Izmail by the future Generalissimo Suvorov were Russia's most signal victories.

Russo-Swedish War of 1788-1790

Concerned about Russian's expansion at Turkey's expense, the West exerted pressure on Sweden's King Gustav III to take up arms against Russia. Gustav also saw a war with Russia as a useful smokescreen for domestic problems in Sweden. Not surprisingly, the war proved very unpopular in Sweden and Finland. Half-hearted efforts led to two failed naval expeditions to invade Reval (Estonia) and Vyborg. The Russian navy under Admiral Chichagov besieged the Swedish fleet, and Sweden lost 6 battleships and 4 frigates. Sweden, though, was able to regroup and win a decisive battle. Nearly 10,000 Russian sailors were killed and a third of the Russian fleet was destroyed. This disaster led to quick peace negotiations and a peace treaty in 1790.

Catherine II issued two medals, one for the naval battles in Finnish waters and another to commemorate the peace treaty.

Russo-Swedish War of 1808-1809

From the time of the Novgorod Republic to Imperial times, Russia fought with Sweden on and off for some 800 years. The last war took place from 1808 to 1809. After the Tilsit Peace Treaty with Napoleon, Russia tried to make Sweden an ally against Britain. Sweden's King Gustav refused, and in February 1808, Russia invaded Finland. By March 1809 the entire Finnish territory was in Russian hands, and the Finnish Diet was organized. In March 1809 three Russian contingents crossed into Sweden – 6,000 troops under Count Shuvalov reached Sweden over land through the north shore of the Bothnia Gulf passing Tornio, 5,000 troops under the future Commander-in-Chief Barclay De Tolly crossed the Bothnia Gulf, walking over ice and through knee deep snow, while 17,000 troops under the future hero of Borodino, Prince Bagration crossed to the Aland Islands then toward Stockholm. As an outcome of the war Finland was annexed by Russia for over 100 years, Sweden's King Gustav IV Adolf lost his throne, and Sweden became a neutral country, not participating in any wars now for 200 years.

- 2085 Award medal „For crossing to Sweden through Tornio River“. 1809. Silver 28 mm. Peters 37, Smirnov 360. The medal was awarded to the soldiers of General P.A. Shuvalov during the Russian - Swedish War 1808 - 1809. 6,269 silver medals were minted. Very Rare

The War with Napoleon 1812-1814

On June 24, 1812, Napoleon's army of 650,000 men invaded Russia. After the indecisive Battle of Borodino (near Moscow), the Russian troops retreated. Napoleon entered Moscow on the 14th of September. As Muscovites fled, 80 percent of the city was burnt to the ground. Some sources say that Moscow's governor ordered the conflagration; others claim that it was accidental. In any case, Napoleon found that he occupied an empty, barren place and so left before cold and hunger of the winter could devastate his army. His retreat from Moscow west, however, was even harsher – no food, no forage and no shelter from the frigid weather. Only 40,000 of French troops reached Paris.

Three awards were created for the participants of this war: the 1812 Medal (in silver and bronze), the cross for priests, and a medal in commemoration of the Russian Army's entry into Paris. Independently a German medal was minted to commemorate the Battle of Leipzig.

All three Russian awards and the German medal are offered here.

War with Turkish Empire of 1828-1829

As a spillover from the Greek War of Independence, English, French and Russian ships destroyed the Ottoman fleet at Navarino in 1827. Turkey responded by closing the Dardanelles to Russian ships and effectively created a naval blockade.

Russian troops under General Dibitch crossed the Danube river and entered what is now Rumania, while on the Caucasian front, the army under General Paskevich took Erivan and Kars. By August 1828, Russian troops were just 50 miles from Constantinople, and the Sultan sought peace. As a result, Georgia and Armenia were formally recognized by Turkey as part of Russia, while Serbia, Moldavia and Wallachia became autonomous. The fate of Kars was unusual – it was returned to Turkey after 1829, retaken by Russia during the Crimean War in 1853, returned again, then taken again in the war of 1877-78 and finally became Turkish after World War I.

Participants of the war of 1828-1829 as well as the sailors who participated in the Navarino battle were awarded a medal. Both variants are offered here.

The Polish Uprising of 1830-1831

After the Vienna Congress of 1815, Poland, or actually the part annexed by Russia in 1772, 1793 and 1795, received special status within the Russian Empire. Wearied of Russian rule, Polish patriots rose up in 1830. The uprising was crushed by Russian troops under the command of General Paskevich, who was summoned by Nicholas I after the death of Commander-in-Chief General Dibitch from cholera in early 1831.

As part of Poland's incorporation, its two Orders, the White Eagle and Stanislaus had become part of Russian award system. And after the Uprising, Nicholas I in order to humiliate the Poles eliminated the most coveted Polish award, the Virtuti Militari, which was similar in status to the U.S. Congressional Medal of Honor and the British Victoria Cross, and created a mockery – the Virtuti Militari cross with the date 1831 instead of 1792 as on the original. Nicholas I awarded this „cross“ as well as a medal „for taking Warsaw“ to all 100,000 troops who participated in the suppression of the rebellion and in taking Warsaw.
